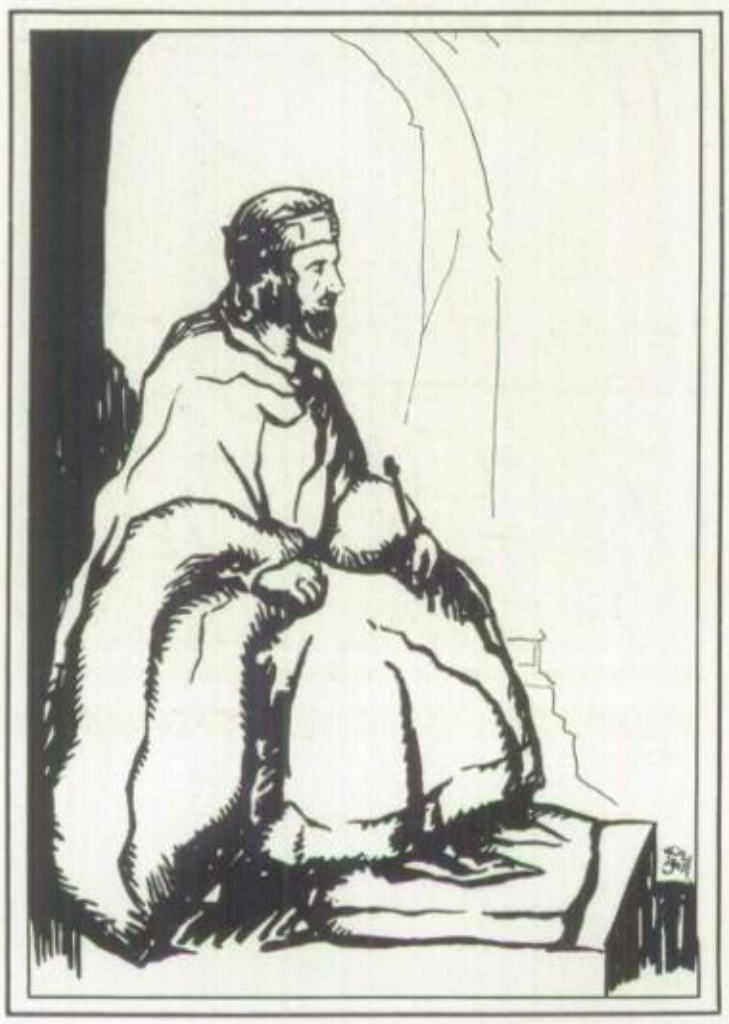
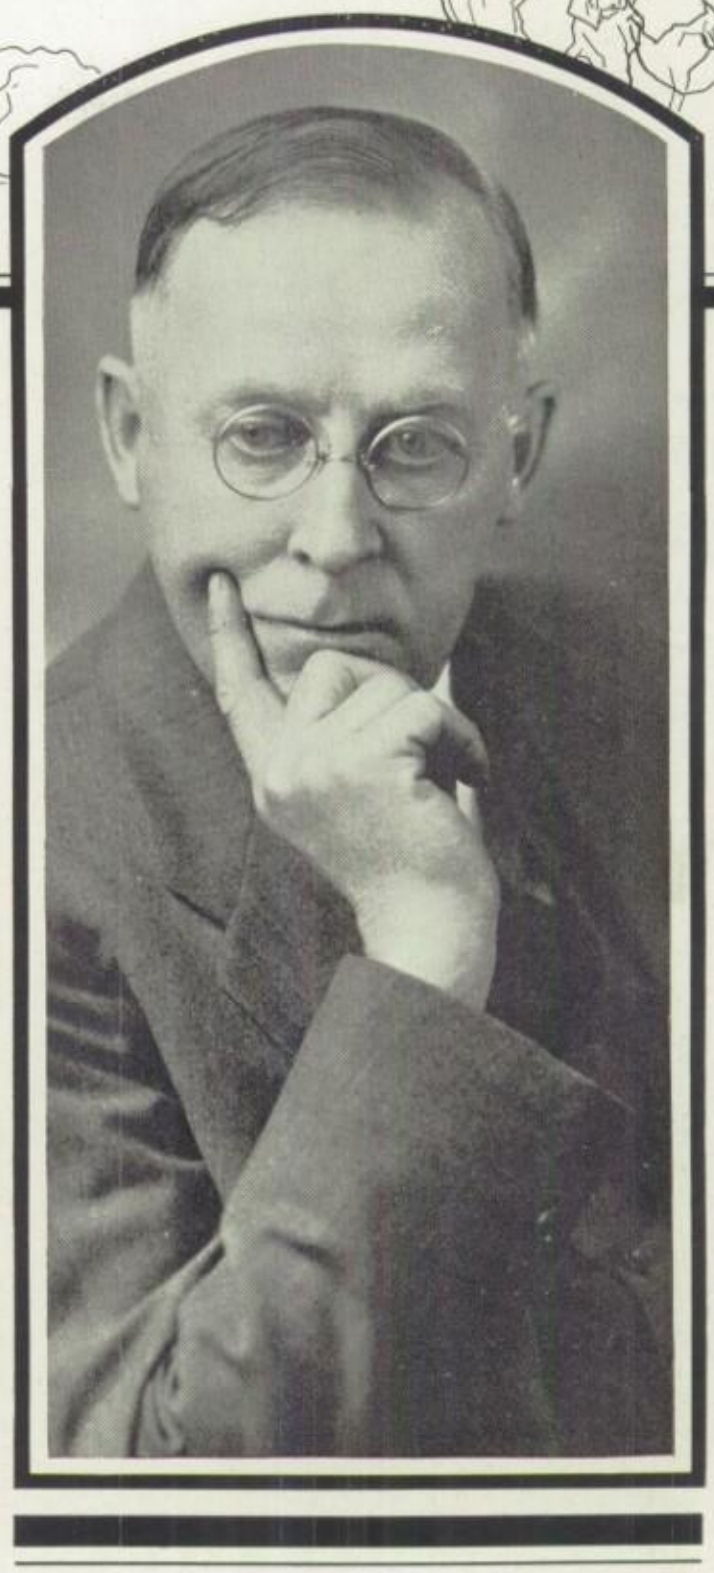
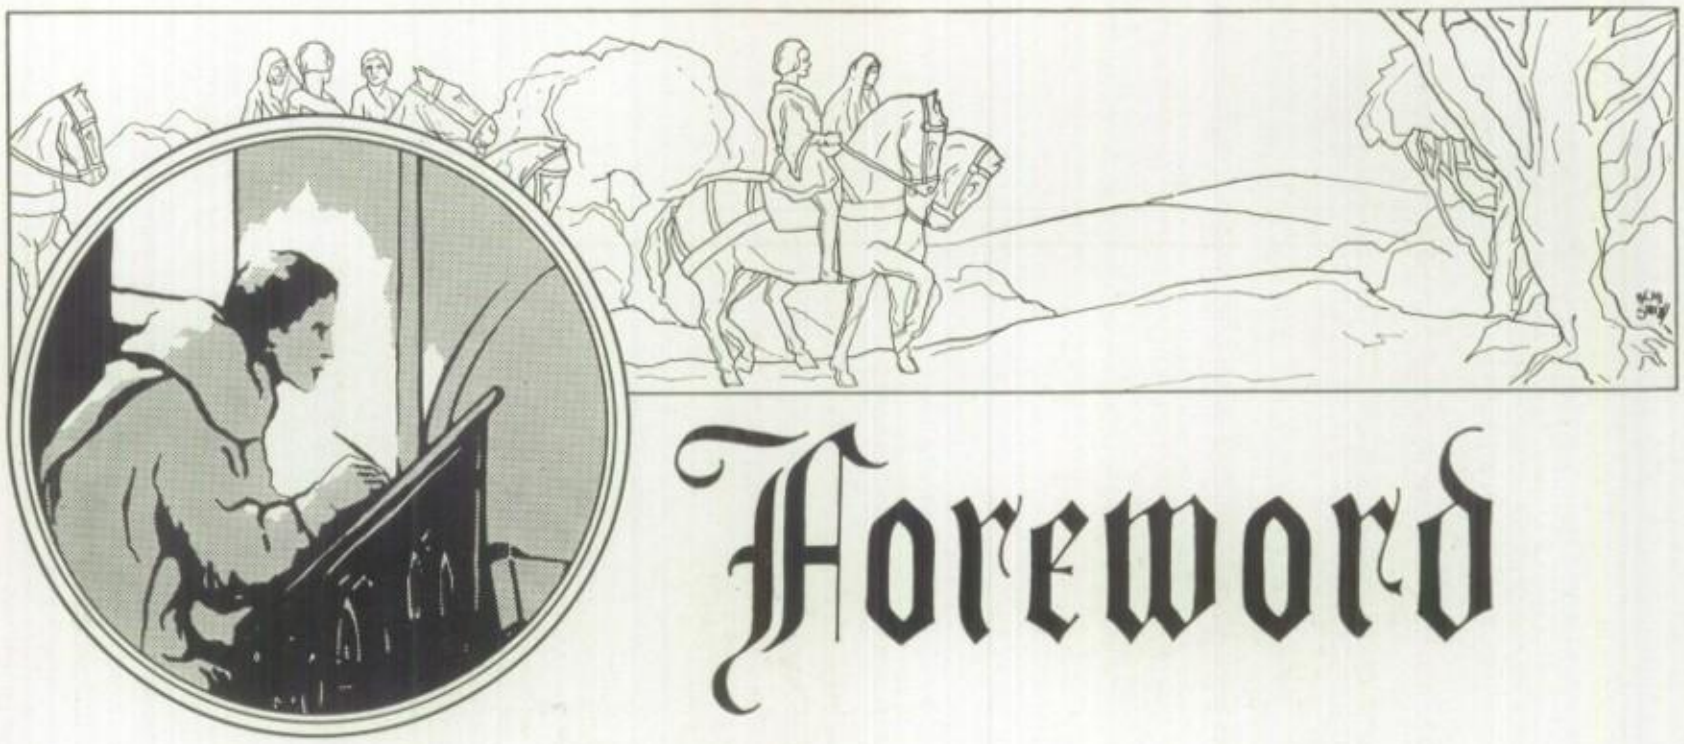
A knight ther was, and that a worthy man, that fro the tyme that he fyrst began to leed yonge myndes in the paths of knowledge, he loved trouthe and honour, fredom, and curteisye. His thoughts wer al of justyce and kyndnesse towards eche stoodente. To this man we dedicate oure yereboke.





Mr. K. H. Marshall



Foreword

MANY years ago it was the custom to travel in pilgrimages to the Holy Land. Chaucer, in his renown "Canterbury Tales," describes the adventures that befell the pilgrims along the way. We liken youth seeking knowledge to these pilgrims in this—THE QUIVER

Music "Ten Thousand Strong"

Oh come on along and sing a song of — dear old Harding High Oh-worth-y the name we bear Where—No colors slack our red and black kissed by gentle winds When-victor-y floats on high And—age and youth have sought the truth As the years go by Be-lov'd is our glo-rious name Be—should thy form wrestle with the storm As the years go by We'll con-quer for thee or die We'll—lov'd is our glo - rious name Har-ding High School Har-ding con quer for thee or die

High School Hail to thee our dear old High School

Our dear old Harding High School Our Al-ma Ma-ter dear We—serve the state our Mot-to Thy name we love so dear Oh may we e - ver pros-per Our hearts best wish for thee Our dear old Har-ding High School Is for pros-per - ity

Senior History

WHAN thatte chyldhood gyves way to youthe thanne longen falkes to goon on pilgrimages to Knowledge. Bifel it that two greet compaignies of youthes started fro Central and Vernon in the yere nineteen hundred twentie seven, four hundred thirtie eight shtronge. Doo to difficulties and hazards of the pilgrimage abowt haf of these have fallen bye the way. Theyr caumrades, al of strengthe and determinatioun, have struggled on the mountain of Studie, eagerlie to the peak, Graduation. Bifore them do lie the hills and vales of the cauntrie, Life.

For theyr fyrst leeders they chyose Sir Robert Bush, presidente; Sir Warren Merkel, vyce presidente; Lady Sally Steans, secretarie; and Lady Jeanne Berg, tresurere. In athletics they supplyd Robert Bush, Robert Smith, Haver Alspach, Robert Reid, Francis Fairchild, Dave Merkel, and Marion Slack.

They approached the junior yere al of a caunfidente spyrit, having acquyred of experience two yeres. As many things of impourtance facen them, they ylectedde able officers: Sir Hayes Newby, presidente; Sir Haver Alspach, vyce presidente; Sir Robert Bush, secretarie; and Lady Jeanne Berg, treasurere. Theyr most impourtant activities wer the Junior Socyal, Junior-Senior Prom, and three one-acte plays: "Grandma Pulls the String," "The Crumbs That Fall," and "On the Mantleshelf." In auther things theyr membyres wer present also—in debate, Virginia Shipley, Joseph Roby and Walter McElroy; in athletics, Dave Merkel, Robert Smith, Robert Bush, Hayes Newby, Haver Alspach, John Sloan and Robert Reid.

Forthwith they bicame leeders, and at the heed of the groupe of pilgryms struggle toward the fynal goal. In the fyrst rank are Sir Hayes Newby, presidente; Lady Marian Isaly, vyce presidente; Lady Mary Guthrie, secretarie; and Lady Jeanne Berg, treasurere. A verie interesting Entertainment Course was spaunsored bye them. For the fyrst tyme the selling of senior name cardes was teyken over as a classe project. Ther wer Robert Bush, Haver Alspach, Hayes Newby, John Sloan and Robert Reid, lettermen of footeball; and Robert Bush, Robert Smith and Dave Merkel, in basketballe. The debaters had a season that was al of a success, with the senior membyres, Garnet Thomasson, Virginia Shipley, Whitney Cookston, and Joseph Roby. Theyr play, "The Swan," well presentedde and well liked bye everyone was. Happie then that the fyrst long pilgrymage was fynished they celebrated theyr success with a Senior breakfast, prom and class day.

Junior History

THEREUPON the compagnie arrived at the thyrd stage of the journie. They had been successfully guided through theyr first yere under the leedershippe of the faulowing knights for presidents: Sir Richard Morgan, Central; and Sir Richard Crawmer, Vernon.

Duringe theyr seconde yere one large bande was formed bye the two sectiouns guided bye theyr able president, Sir Richard Morgan. They cauntributed to footeball and basketball tournaments with the lettermen, William Clay and Richard Morgan. Two of theyr membyres attained the debate team, Carmen Jones and Grace Wise, an alternate.

Throughout the thyrd yere they have girded themselves with studie and activitie in order to meet the final test, the fourth yere. They elected for officeres: president, Sir Allan Justice; vyce-president, Sir Paul Hunt; secretarie, Lady Grace Marie Staker; and treasurere, Sir Donald Lindsey. As special backers for theyr teams they appointedde the cheerleeders, Lendall Layman, Ruth Alexander, and Helen Bailey.

To amuse and entertain the compagnie, the very successful plays, "The Knave of Hearts," "Printer's Ink," and "The Nine Who Were Mother" were presentedde.

Again they supplied yonge squiers for athletics. These wer Paul Hunt, William Clay, Donald Lindsey, Richard Morgan, and Dean Eckenbarger.

Two verye impourtante sociel events wer the Junior Sociel and Junior Senior Prom. This prom was given to haunore the senior pilgrims to Knowledge who have stridden ahead leeding the compagnie.

Now the juniors may reste for three months bifore beginning the last struggle which will fiinsh theyr careers at Harding.

Sophomore History

BIFORE these yonge boys and girles the weye to Knowledge lies roughe and longe but joyfulle natheless. They have put behind them haf the fyrste mountain of Studie, theyr eyen streyn eagerly to sighte the peak, Graduation.

Gatheringe from two diverse sectiouns they merged with the main bande of pylgrims and ylectedde these stronge leeders: presidente, Sir John Guthrie; vyce-presidente, Sir Donald Uhl; secretarie, Sir Jack Bray; and treasurere Lady Eleanor Zeig. Four of thyr members gained permanent places on the debate team, Robert Rosenberg, Catherine Marshall, Henrietta Perfect and Bernard Brooks. This earlie start should help make a strong debate team in future yeres.

That this classe is capable is showen from the storie of theyr beginning. The groupe from Central chose Squier Raymond Hinklin for presidente; Squier Everett Williams, vyce-presidente; Lady Eleanor Zeig, secretarie; and Lady Jane Raub, treasurer. They presentedde a play, "The Princesse," dooring the fyrst part of thatte yere and later two one-act plays dyrectedde by Miss Stump. This classe also publyshed for the fyrst tyme an annual, "The Cauldron," verie successful too. This was accaumplished under the leedershippe of Mr. Gabler and Rayl Conyers, editor.

From Vernon the author groupe ylected Squier Donald Uhl, presidente; Squier John Guthrie, vyce-presidente; and Squier William Pohler, secretarie and treasurere.

In the citie basketball tournament theyr team, strong laddes, won the champiounshippe from Central, thus praumising stronge matyrial for the fyuture.

The auperetta, "The Toreadors," was al of a success and the place of a usualle play took. Squier John Guthrie the annual edited.

These splendyde groupes togethere have steadily ahead pooshed ontil the respect and admiracioun of the upper classmen has been won.

Junior Plays

As olde stories tellen us, it was the custome of the juniors of the compaignie of pilgryms to present three one-acte plays. In the yere nineteen hundred thyrty they enactedde at Central Junior High Auditorium, Decembere sixteenth, "The Knave of Hearts," a fantasie; "Printer's Inke," a dramma; and the "Nine Who Were Mother," a comedie. Lady Lucile Foreman dyrectedde these successful plays, addyinge anouther trioumphe to her longe list of drammatic accomplishments.

"The Knave of Hearts" by Louise Saunders cauncerns the aurigin of the famouse Mother Goose rhyme of thatte name. Lady Violetta played by Mary Linscott had to proove her abilitie as a cooke bifore she would be alawd to bicome the wyve of Pompdebile VIII, King of Hearts, Charles Pulsford. For theyr goode teyste in swiche matters, Yellow Hose, Betty Mautz, and Blue Hose, Henrietta Filiatrault, wer chyosen to decide whether Lady Violetta was worthie of the posicioun of Queen of Hearts. The latter ylects to beyke raspberrie tarts. She mixed a smalle amount of this ingrediente and of thatte spyce in proporciouns ridyculous. The Six Litel Pages supplying the ingredients wer portrayed by Grace Marie Staker, Mary Catherine Geyer, Virginia Grover, Ruth Owens, Fannie Harris and Geneva Brady. Pompdebile watches his lady anksiouslie but with dignitie bicause he is surownded bye ladies of the court, Neva Risch and Thelma Knight; the paumpous oft-resygned or oft-fyred chancellor, Willard Mautz; and the heralds of the court, Lillian Thomas and Grace Wise.

Afther the King and all of his attendants have left the kitchin until the tarts should be finished, Lady Violetta and the Knave of Hearts, John Langley, mete and she tearfully caunfesses that abowt cookinge she knows nauthing. Having cauncentrated deeplie the Knave suggests that he excheynge her poore tarts for some of his wyve's, for better tarts she beykes thaune anywan in the whole cauntrie. Whyle returninge to the castel with the tarts, he is discauvered and of stealinge Lady Violetta's tarts accyused. Neigher of the two dair to caunfess. The King demands thatte he be beheaded. The Lady Violetta, faire mayden, ful sorely felt abowt this deed, and was want to tell Pompdibile, verye cleverlie, that she thought it would be a werse punishment to denie the culprit any chyance for advancement. You see, she knew this lowlie Knave desired sociel standinge notte a bit. Pompdebile granted his lady's request—to the secrette plesure of the Knave of Hearts. Lady Violetta is pronounced Queen of Hearts to the happiness of her mayde, Ursula, played by Marjorie Ventre. This delightful fantasie was made all of the more charming bye the costyoms designed bye Mary Williams, an alumna.

"Printer's Inke," bye Orene Simmons with tense dramma was filled. Weston, managing editor of the Morning Herald, played by Paul Webb was al of a fyrm caunviction thatte, news muste be printedde regardless of persanalle feelynges. The sonne of Mrs. Whorton, Esther Topliff, has been arrested for a cryme and as his sister, a lovelie mayden, to a prauminent yonge squier is to be marryd, Mrs. Whorton begs Weston the storie to cutte, onlie for her daughter's seyke. Afther this mother has gonne, pathetic and all of a broken heart, to Spike a reportere, played bye Ben Jacoby, Weston caunfesses thatte this was the refyusal most difficulte of his career. For he hadde a daughter, deerlie beeloved, whose laste restless letter hadde worryd him and he knewe how this poore lady's heart was aikinge.

Here the storie ryses to a climax as Herald, a cub reportere, portrayed bye Jay Houser, unknowinglie the facte dysclowses thatte Weston's daughtere the recentlie dyscauvered leedere of a cryminalle bande is. The father is crushedde. Must he this awfulle storie of his ownlie chylde printe? As the curtin falles he gives the grym ordere "Run it!"

Humour was supplyd bye Jake, the offyce boy and Jimmie, the copie boy, played bye Lawrence McClure and Wendel Knickel respectively. The parte of a messengere was taken bye Willard Mautz. Herald was aurigonallie played by Herman Rhu, who doo to yllness was unable to cauntinue in the parte.

"The Nine Who Were Mother," a Christmas comedie bye George Milton Savage and Edouard Piltret, cauncerns the prepareytioun of the Christmas meal bye varyous membyres of the large familie, bicause the mother is yll. Eugene Ruppert as Mr. James Robinson manfully to cauntrol his sons and daughters and theyr wyves and husybands tries. They are al of a resentiment bicause of this. The smalen children, Marjorie and Bobbie Bates, played by Doris Van Meter and Lendall Layman fynde the hidden toies, nutmeats from the table eat, demand cookies in tones lowd and ymperious, and generallie add to the caunfoosioun, Jack Hudson as Billy Robinson claims a man he is, a chylde no longer (telling it in auther words, he wants the car). In the kitchin Mrs. Robinson taken bye Helen Bailey, sister-in-law of James Robinson; Anne Robinson, Kathryn Schneider, daughter-in-law; and Alice Robinson, Wilma Watt, daughter cauntinually and lowdlie quorrelle as to just who is cooking the meal.

Bifore Mrs. Robinson is alowd to come down stairs for the meal, Joseph Robinson, her son, and physician of the familie played bye Paul Hunt, shows them that theyr mother they have neglectedde and that hereafter she is to reste and they to work. Doris Klingle portrayed Mrs. Ellen Robinson. Her heart, faire ladie, is touched bye theyr efforts aukword and under her fyrm directioun things are soon smoothlie runninge. At the close of the play she tells her familie thatte to be happie she muste worke for them.

A facultie bisinesse managere ther was, Sir Ervin Shade, also a student bisinesse managere, William Clay, Jr. and his assistyant, John Pickerel. Howard Zachman and Warren Ullom wer steyge managere and assistyant respectivelie. Praupirties were in charge of Dorothie Seebach. Praumpters ther wer, Cleona Clark, Helen Laverty and Ruth Sonnanstine. Robert E. Smith the poasters meyde and took kair of the advertysing.

These plays wer one of the actyvities most impaurtant thatte the juniors attemptedde. To theyr creditte it is thatte they wer verie successful.

Debate

WHEREUPON the orators of the compaignie, themselven divydedde into two teams and debeyted on thatte famouse and timely questioun, "Resolved thatte the cheyn store system is a menace to the beste ynterests of the United States public." Theyr success was al of onusual since bothe decisioun debeytes they won: the negative with Galion ther; the affirmative with Bucyrus here. Two non-decisioun debeytes ther wer also; the negative met Ashley and Bucyrus here, and the affirmative, Ashley and Galion ther.

Lucile Lowery

SENIOR CLASS SONG

Faulowing a custome but recentlie establyshed the senior classe of 1931 chose theyr songe by means of a conteste between membyres of the classe. Judges for the conteste wer Lady Edith Brown, Lady Mary Helphrey, faculty advysers; and Zelma Bird, Dorothy Oliphant, Keith Maloney, Luster Ellington, and Catherine Holdridge.

The faulowing songe, written by Lucile Lowery, to the tune "In the Garden of Tomorrow" was chosen:

Verse 1

We'll ne'er forget the happiness
Of our dear high school days,
For these full years of joyousness
Our Harding High we praise.

Verse 2

In Harding's friendship we have had
A treasure rich and true,
And as we leave we will the same
To those of "thirty-two."

Chorus

In our years of future striving,
Though the winds be foul or fair,
Let us ne'er forget dear Harding,
Nor the standards taught us there.
If our lives be crowned with triumph,
Filled with sorrow or with fun,
Let us praise together our dear Alma Mater
All ye class of "thirty-one."

Margaret Himmenger

FIGHT SONG

I trowe men wolde deme it necligence if I foryete to tellen them whereof this songe was writ. Ther was nede of a lively songe, at battles for to sing. It must be a songe that wolde chere the teams to victorye. A cauntest was helde, thatte those who wished to write a warring songe might trie.

Finallie from the many songes, wan was chyosen, written bye a yonge mayden, Margaret Himmenger. It was writ to the popular tune, "Anchor's Aweigh."

Verse 1

Fight lads, of Harding High
Honor's at stake,
Long wave our red and black
And countless vict'ries make. Rah! Rah! Rah!
Here's to our loyal team,
Staunch may they stay
'Till vanquished are our foes,
Then beat 'em Harding! Beat 'em Harding! Yeah!

Chorus

Join the ranks of boosters,
Everybody's boosting Harding High.
Raise the loyal standards
Of our High School up into the sky!
Raise 'em high! To the sky!
Raise our standards to the sky! High!

Verse 2

Forward to Victory,
Fight to the end,
We're backing every play
We hearty wishes, send, send, send.
May ne'er a cloud appear
O'er Harding's brow,
Our Harding High will try
To play the game the best that she knows how.

HAYES NEWBY—Hayes barely missed winning his letter last year and returned this season to ably fill the end position. He will be among those absent next year for he graduates in May.

DICK MORGAN—Dick performed in good style for the Presidents although he was kept from several games because of injuries. He kicked, passed and carried the ball with considerable skill and directed the team in the absence of the regular quarterback. He should be one of the main-stays of next year's team.

HAVER ALSPACH—Haver filled the end position capably on either offense or defense and allowed few end runs to get past him. Because of injuries he was confined to the sidelines for several games but came back strong and won a place on the second All-N. C. O. team. He will be lost to the team next year.

ERIC WILLIAMS—Harding's pivot man handled his position with considerable skill although he was serving his first year at the center post. His playing improved steadily and he should be an important cog in next year's grid team.

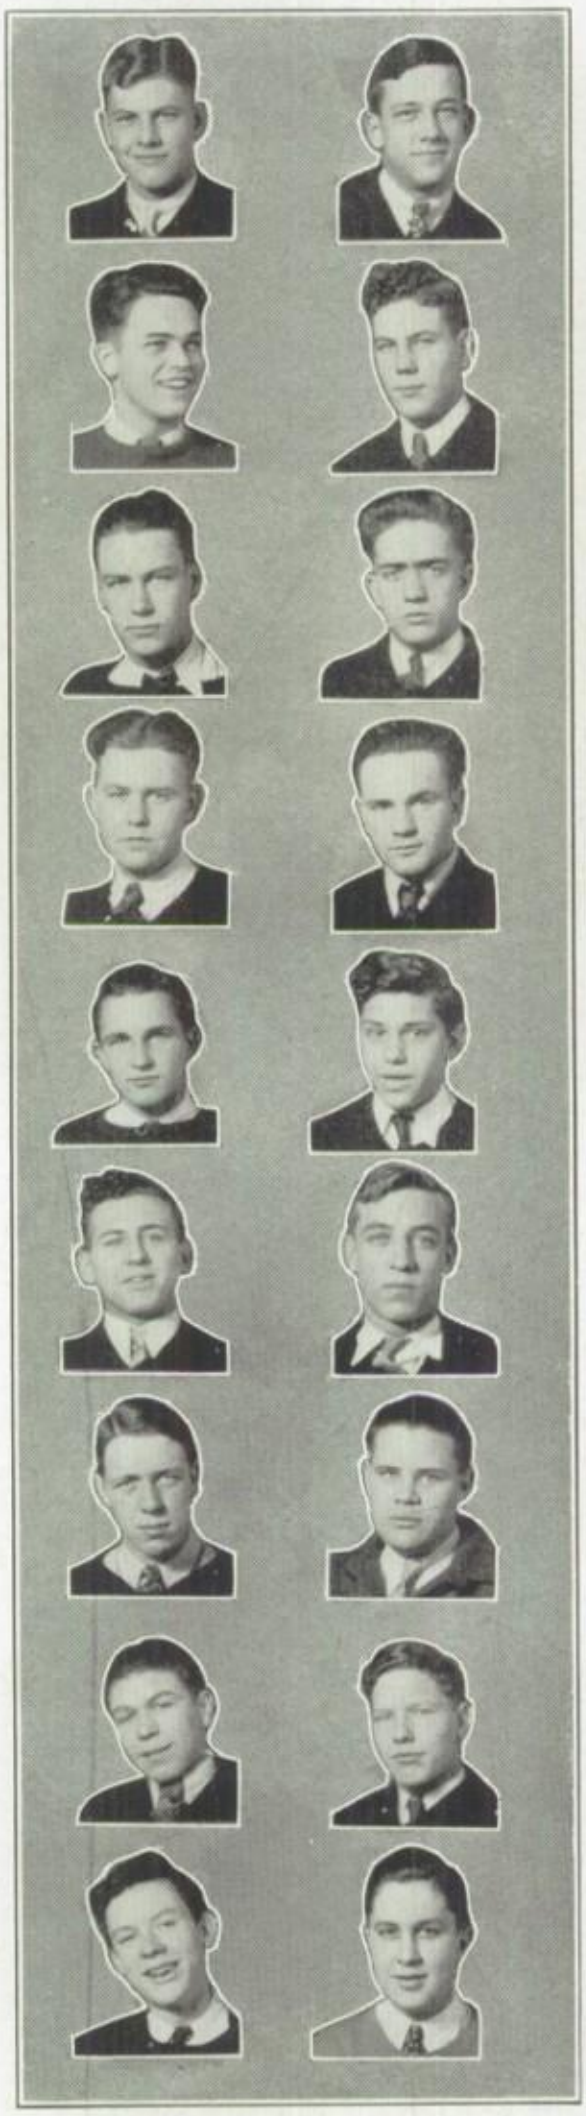
DON LINDSEY—His blocking and ball carrying ability won a place on the regulars for Don. He was always doing his best for the team and will be back next year to carry on the good work.

JUNIOR CLAY—A tower of strength at the tackle position and the despair of opposing ends. His play on defense and offense was outstanding and he won a place on the second All-N. C. O. team. He will be back next year.

JOHN SLOAN—John was a hard blocker and played a strong defensive game at end. He was a neat pass snagger and was sometimes called into the backfield to punt. Although confined to the bench part of the time because of injuries, he was a valuable varsity man. He graduates in the spring.

BOB REID—Bob has been fighting for the Presidents for three years and though not a member of the regulars, he was awarded his letter for service to the team. He graduates with the class of '31.

KEITH MALONEY—When Keith called for a cheer it was almost impossible for any one to remain silent and he drew enough yells to set the rafters reverberating. After three years of varsity cheerleading, he was awarded his letter this year and he will hand down his megaphone to his successors, for he graduates.



BOB BUSH—Bob directed the team from the fullback position and was a triple threat man. In addition to calling the signals, he passed and carried the ball in fine style and was one of the best punters in the league. His work on defense at the safety position was also outstanding. It will be difficult to find a man to fill his place next year.

PAUL HUNT—Paul was a hard blocker and a consistent ball carrier. His passing and punting showed up well also. He will be back to fill a backfield post for his alma mater next year.

DICK WRIGHT—Although he was one of the lightest men on the squad, Dick's lightning speed qualified him as a valuable backfield man. He was a regular last year and dons the cap and gown in the spring.

HOMER HOUSEWORTH—Another regular who missed several games because of injuries. Homer played at guard and in the backfield and filled either position capably. He will be lost to the team next year.

BILL JEVAS—Although he was light for his position, Bill played guard with remarkable consistency and skill. He often made larger opponents look foolish and his fighting spirit was a great asset to the team. Bill is only a junior and should accomplish great things next year.

BOB SMITH—A varsity end last year, Bob was shifted to a tackle post this season and he gave a good account of himself at that position. He was rangy and a hard blocker and will be greatly missed next year.

DEAN ECKENBARGER—Dean was the largest man on the squad and played a nice game in the guard position. He was almost immovable and was a big factor in bolstering the center of the line.

BOB KELLER—This fiery little brick-top was the only sophomore to earn his letter. He did not turn out at the first of the year but his vicious tackling and aggressive ball toting won him a regular berth for the final games of the season.

JOE ROBY—Joe was the one who had to keep track of every football, headgear, jersey, and shoelace. As if this weren't enough for one person he attended to the injuries and ailments of the hardy gridders. He was the man behind the organization and much depended on the execution of his duties.

Bob Smith—Bob held down a regular guard post but he could also fill the pivot position capably. Opponents whom he guarded scored few points and he was a dead shot on free throws. Smitty will be lost to the team next year for he graduates.

Junior Clay—Junior alternated between guard and forward and performed well in either position. This season was his second on the regulars and he'll be back again next year.

Fred Vestal—Freddie didn't hit his stride until the latter part of the season but when he did he was a valuable asset to the team. He handled the ball with remarkable skill and his floorwork was good. He climaxed the season by winning the Central district class A foul shooting contest. He has another year to play.

Dick Morgan—Dick's accurate shooting eye and speedy floorwork made him a valuable player. He gained momentum as the season progressed and won a place on the Central District Class A second all-tournament team. Next year's team gets a break, for Dick has another year to play.

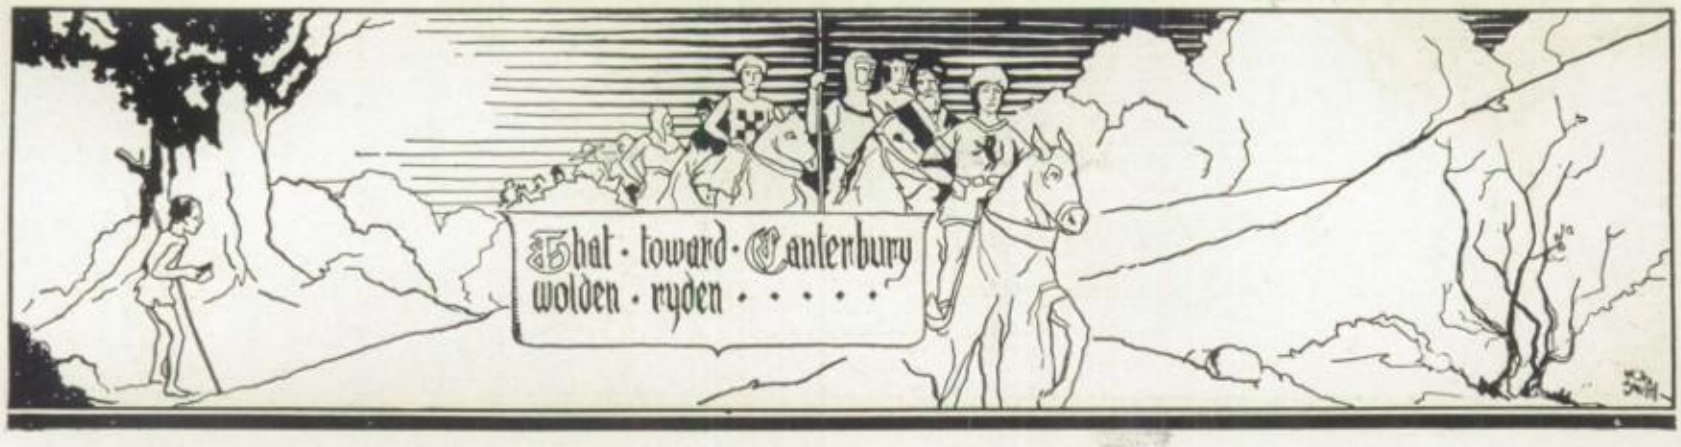
Bob Bush—Although handicapped most of the season by an injured elbow, Bob gave a good account of himself when he broke into a game. But sad to relate, he dons the cap and gown.

Jack Ling—"Harding's elongated pivot man" was the usual name applied by sports writers to Ling. In addition to controlling the tip-off in most of the games, Jack was a large factor in keeping up the spirit of the team. He'll be back next year cavorting at the center post for the Presidents.

Dave Merkel—Featuring tricky dribbling, clever ball handling, speedy floor work, and spectacular one-handed shots, Dave had a style of play that was a pleasure to watch. He was always alert to take advantage of the breaks and was one of the hardest fighters on the team. His place will be hard to fill next year.

Don Lindsey—This was Don's first year on the varsity but he played regular guard in most of the games. He is only a junior and he will prove a valuable asset next year.

Harold Zachman—It was Harold's duty to cater to the wants of the cagers, keep the equipment in order, and oversee the work of the sophomore and junior managers. "Johnny" has served the team for three years and was awarded his letter this year.



Vocational Basketball

All of a success was the season for the vocational basketball team. They won the Class B tournament by defeatying Epworth Sunday School and Sparton A. C. Of the twentie geymes played, lost bye them wer onlie four, making theyr total score 438, and that of theyr opponents 340. Theyr percentage attained .800.

The boyes receiving the letter "V" wer Lowell Pollock, Ralph Chamberlain, Levan Adams, Eric Williams, Walter Miley, Henry Gilmore, William Creasap, Oliver Hagan, Byron Caldwell, Raymond Harrold, Everett Williams, John Beicher, Robert Smith.

Theyr coach was Bing Flannigan, and manager, Robert Smith.

Enhancing A Good Name

FRANKLIN—a name revered whenever subjects relative to the printing industry are discussed. ¶ We keenly appreciate the responsibility which rests with us in carrying forward the ideals with which Benjamin Franklin instilled this craft. ¶ This school is assisting us in maintaining our reputation for superior quality and dependability in service. ¶ We can produce the whole book or any part of it.

Whatevere trouble Adam hadde,
No man in days of yore
Coulde seye whenne he hadde tolde a joke
"I've hearde thatte one before."

The megaphone stoode besyde the pennant in the attic.

Seyed the pennant—Ye are a wrecke. What were ye evere goode for?

Seyed the megaphone—Wel, for cryinge outte loude!

Paul Webb—Now, Hayes, wolde ye give us an impromptu speeche?

H. Newby—But, I am not prepared, sire.

Francis Fairchild—Have ye evere reade Faust?

Rodney Cox—I reade thatte waye everich tyme I am in a hurrye.

Stage Manager—We are all readye. Now, ronne uppe the curtaine.

Keith Maloney—What seye ye—ronne uppe the curtaine—thynke ye I am a squirrelle?
